Michigan, offered his services as an informant on Communist matters, particularly in the Latvian and Lithuanian groups. PORMANIS stated he was born February 4, 1919, at Rabinisk, Russia. His parents MARTIN and ALMA FORMANIS were Latvian citizens. The family moved from Rabinisk, Russia, to Riga, Latvia, in 1922, and the subject obtained his education in Riga. The education consisted of a high school diploma and a law degree which he received at the University of Riga in May, 1944. Subject stated from a period in 1939 until June, 1940, he had been employed as an informant on Communist matters for the Political Police of Latvia. This employment was in a factory in Riga. He further stated that he was a student in the University of Riga from June, 1940, to May, 1944. After the Russians had withdrawn from Latvia and the Germans subsequently occupied that country in July, 1944, subject was sent to a German labor camp in Bruck-on-Mur, Austria. Following his release from the labor camp and beginning about April, 1945, subject stated he was in a Displaced Persons Camp composed of Latvians and located at Esslingen, Germany, until he was able to qualify on a Russian quota for migration to the U. S., which was in February, 1947. Subject displayed a Certificate of Identification (in lieu of passport) which reflected that on October 22, 1946, he had qualified for immigration to the U. S. and entered the U. S. at New York City on February 18, 1947. He proceeded directly to Detroit, Michigan, arriving in that city on February 20, 1947, and took up residence with Mr. and Mrs. CHRISTIAN JACOBSON. Mrs. JACOBSON (ANN) is the aunt of GAIDA FORMANIS, subject's wife, and is the person who guaranteed their support while in the U. S. GAIDA FORMANIS accompanied her husband in all his travels subsequent to their marriage in July, 1944.

Subject stated that he had already filed his first papers for citizenship in the U. S. and having read of the publicity concerning Communist activities in this country felt that because of his previous background as a Communist informant that he could be of the same service to this country within the Latvian and Lithuanian groups.

The records of the Central Office, Immigration and Naturalization Service, reflect that VITOLDS PORMANIS application for Immigration Visa #59 at the American Consulate, Stuttgart, Germany, on October 22, 1946, stating that he was born February 4, 1919, at Rabinisk, Russia. His wife, GAIDA FORMANIS, was born in Riga, Latvia. Subject was issued Certificate of Identification Number 24452 at the American Consulate, Stuttgart, Germany, on October 22, 1946, and Russian Quota Immigration Visa Number 1360 on December 11, 1946. His entered the U. S. at New York City on February 18, 1947, aboard the SS Ernie Pyle.

Information furnished by the State Department in 1947 reflects that the subject and his wife, SAIDA FORMANIS, were issued Immigration Visa Numbers 1379 and 1380 in December, 1946 under the Russian quota. They sailed from the Port of Bremerhaven on February 7, 1947. Subsequently information was received by the Department of State from Confidential Informant T-1, a Latvian Displaced Person of unknown reliability as follows:

In February, 1941, when Riga, Latvia was occupied by the Russians the father of the subject was a member of the Communist Executive Committee of Riga, and subject himself was on the editorial staff of the Communist newspaper, "Cinjs." Later subject also became a member of the Executive Committee. Shortly after the occupation of Riga by the Germans, subject was seen wearing the swastika arm band and acting in the capacity of a guard in front of the German headquarters. He was subsequently arrested by the Latvian Secret Police and charged with treason, but was released due to pressure of high German officials. It was also alleged that subject, just prior to his departure (apparently for the United States), attended a party in Esslingen Württ, Germany, at which time he jokingly showed a certificate stating that he was a persecuted person and spoke of having huge sums of money.

Confidential Informant T-2, of unknown reliability, who was identified by T-1 as an acquaintance of the subject, advised that in January or February, 1946, while she was a member of the Displaced Persons Camp at Esslingen, Germany, she attended a party where the subject was also present. T-2 advised this was a small social gathering and that during the progress of the party the subject made a speech relating for the most part to his past experiences. She stated that politics did not enter into the speech or to subsequent discussions. T-2 advised that she was residing with the individual described in this report as T-1 and after returning home after the above-mentioned party T-1 explained to her that subject had been in the Communist underground in Latvia before the Russians came to Latvia and that he had also been a strong Communist after the Russians had taken over. Furthermore subject gained favor with the Nazi regime after the Germans entered Latvia. T-1 had a son who had been a Latvian Army officer and who was allegedly deported to Siberia after having been identified by the subject. T-2 advised that she knew of one other family who also had a son who was a Latvian Army officer and who had also been deported after having been identified by the subject. T-2 advised that subject left the Displaced Persons Camp before she did and that she had not seen or heard of him since.

The subject and his wife were interviewed on October 6, 1947, at Detroit, and the following information was furnished by the subject:

His father, MARTIN PORMANIS, was described as a former councilman in Riga but retired since 1940, and his mother was described as a general practitioner physician. Subject stated he had a sister MELITA PORMANIS, age 24, who at that time was a resident of the Latvian Displaced Persons Camp at Stuttgart, Germany. Subject stated he was engaged as an informant for the Latvian Secret Police and in that capacity worked in a factory in Latvia from October, 1939, to June 17, 1940. From May, 1940, to March, 1941, he was employed as a Reporter on the Latvian newspaper "Cina." From March to June, 1941, he secreted himself on a farm 120 miles from Riga, returning to that city prior to June 21, 1941, which was the approximate date the Russians evacuated Latvia and the occupation of that country by the Germans. Subject stated he was arrested by the Germans as a suspected Communist and confined for six weeks. He was released when the Germans were unable to prove his activities as a Communist. He resumed his studies at the University of Latvia in 1941, and received his law degree in May, 1944. In July, 1944, he was placed in a German labor camp at Bruck-on-Mur, Austria, and remained there until April, 1945. From April, 1945, to February, 1947, he and his wife were in the Latvian Displaced Persons Camp at Esslinger, Germany. Through his wife's efforts they were able to obtain visas to the U. S. with Mr. and Mrs. CHRISTIAN JACOBSON acting as sponsors. Mrs. JACOBSON is an aunt of the subject's wife and resided at 19429 Faust, Detroit, Michigan. Subject stated that rumors persisted in the Displaced Persons Camp concerning his Communist connections and described these rumors as being without basis in fact.

Subject stated that his father had been active in politics from 1928 to 1932 as a councilman in Riga and was a member of the Social Democrat Party. Subject stated that to his knowledge his father had never been associated with the Communist Party and that his mother had never been active in politics.

The subject's wife in the course of the interview denied any knowledge of her husband's activities prior to their marriage on July 16, 1944, and stated that she was not aware of his arrest by the Nazis. GAIDA POHMAN stated that she had been told that her husband had previously been a member of a national student fraternity known as "Lettonia" at the University of Riga, and that he had worked for the Latvian newspaper "Cina". She did admit that the newspaper "Cina" was probably Communist dominated. GAIDA POHMAN stated that she and her husband upon arrival in New York City from Bremerhaven proceeded directly to the home of her aunt, ANN JACOBSON, in Detroit, Michigan.

Confidential Informant T-3, another Government agency engaged in security investigations, reported in July, 1949, that the subject had been expelled in July or August, 1940, from the fraternity "Lettonia" for collaboration with the Russians and that he wrote pro-Communist articles for the Communist sponsored newspaper "Cina".

Mr. and Mrs. GEORGE PERKONS, Rollins Musical School, Lenox, Massachusetts, advised in February, 1948, that they were acquainted with the subject and his wife for about one year while all were in the Displaced Persons Camp in Germany. Mrs. PERKONS stated that she also knew of the subject's family in Latvia and that there were no Communist Party, Russian, or German connections with the POHMANIS family. Mr. PERKONS stated that he knew subject worked for the newspaper "Cina" and that it was the only paper in Latvia, and there was no question but what it was controlled by the Communists. Mr. PERKONS stated that he had many times heard the subject express a dislike for both the Germans and Russians.

Mr. JOHN GZOLINS, brother-in-law of GEORGE PERKONS, stated at Pittsfield, Massachusetts, in February, 1948, that he was sure from his knowledge of the subject that he had never worked with either the Germans or Russians and that he had a terrible dislike for the Russians and the Communist Party.

Confidential Informant T-4, of unknown reliability, who was a displaced Latvian and acquainted with the subject, furnished the following information in January, 1950. T-4 stated that in 1940 or 1941 the subject while in Riga, Latvia, admitted in her presence at her residence that he was writing for the newspaper "Cina" which paper was, to her knowledge, the organ of the Latvian Communist Party. T-4 stated that on or about June 24 or 25, 1941, which was the first or second day of the German occupation of Riga, while enroute to her home from the central prison of Riga, where she had gone endeavoring to find the body of her husband, she saw the subject in front of the former headquarters of the police located at the corner of Esplanade and Brivibas Streets in Riga. T-4 stated that at this time the subject was wearing civilian clothes, a sweater and pants and carrying a rifle and was patrolling in front of the former headquarters. T-4 advised that she spoke with the subject on this occasion and that to the best of her recollection the subject endeavored to belittle his past Communist Party activities and indicated that his father was at this time in disfavor with the Russian authorities.

Confidential Informant T-5, of unknown reliability, who is a Latvian displaced person, advised in January, 1950, that on or about May 3, 1941, following her son's arrest by the Russian military authorities, she went to see Dr. FORMANIS, the subject's mother. T-5 stated that to the best of her recollection the subject resided in a section of Riga near the central prison. T-5 stated that she informed Dr. FORMANIS that her son, an acquaintance of the subject, had been arrested. T-5 stated that Dr. FORMANIS took her by the hand and led her out into the hallway of the FORMANIS residence and advised her that she was unable to talk to her within the confines of their living quarters inasmuch as there were microphones secreted in the house. T-5 stated she advised Dr. FORMANIS that the purpose of her call was to ascertain if VITOLDS FORMANIS was in a position as a Communist to ascertain the present location of the Informant's son. T-5 stated that Dr. FORMANIS stated that her husband and son, VITOLDS, were in no position to assist her and informed the Informant, "It is the malice of my family that both my husband and son are Communists."

Confidential Informant T-11, of known reliability, who is a Latvian displaced person and a former government official in Riga, advised he is not acquainted with the subject but the subject's parents are known to him. T-11 stated subject's father several years ago was a member of the Social Democratic Party. Within this party he was considered to belong to the "liberal" or "leftist" group, which though not Communist, often voted with the Communists on political issues.
